

WAINWRIGHT'S BIG 1931 FAIR BALANCE OF THIS WEEK

MRS. TOM HILL OF GREENSHIELDS PASSES

DIES AFTER OPERATION AT CITY HOSPITAL LAST WEDNESDAY

Sorrow visited the Greenshields family last week when it became known that Susan Campbell, the beloved wife of Mr. Tom Hill of that district, had passed away at the McEwen hospital in Edmonton following an operation.

The late Mrs. Hill, was born in Scotland 43 years ago, and came to Canada in 1910. After staying some time in Vancouver, she was married in 1917 and has resided with her husband on the farm ever since.

She was taken seriously ill about six weeks ago, and was a patient at the local hospital for a short time. Later she was taken to Edmonton for an operation for goitre. The patient survived the operation only about five hours, the shock to the system causing death.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, two sons, Allan and Gordon, and one daughter, Dorothy.

One sister, Mrs. Jack Hill, still resides at Greenshields, in addition to five sisters and three brothers in Scotland and one sister in Australia.

The body was brought to Wainwright on Thursday for interment and the funeral was conducted by the Rev. A. M. Tremblay of St. Thomas' church on Friday afternoon, when a large number of friends and neighbors paid their last respects to the deceased. Messrs. H. Jackson, T. Patterson, D. Rattray, P. Haywood, H. Pfleger and D. Hutchinson were the pallbearers.

Among the numerous floral tributes were:— Father and children, pillow; wreaths, Lena, Jack & Family; Mr. Joe Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Stouffer; Sprays, Mr. and Mrs. D. Rattray, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Haywood, Mr. and Mrs. R. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Bleasdale, Jane Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Pfleger & Lillian, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. ALBERTA GRAIN GROWERS SWEEP REGINA BOARDS

EDMONTON, July 28. — Northern Alberta exhibitors at the Regina summer fair have made another clean-up on wheat. Herman Treble of Wembley who is attending the show today wired the department of agriculture that E. Shanks of Athabasca had won first prize in Garnet wheat; Eric Anderson, Wembley, first and champion ship in Marquis; Mrs. Treble second in Marquis.

In reward wheat Mrs. Treble won the grand championship with a 72 pound sample; J. H. B. Smith, Edmonton, second; E. Anderson, third.

Mrs. Wm. Arkwright is away to the coast on a holiday for a couple of weeks.

PREVENT DRASTIC WHEAT DECLINE

OTTAWA SEES GREATER EXPORT TRADE FOR CANADIAN BEEF

OTTAWA, July 29.—(C.P.) — "In view of the evidence given before the committee it is recommended that the government take whatever steps it may deem necessary to prevent a drastic decline in the price paid to producers of wheat, especially during the fall months when the bulk of the crop is being marketed."

This was one of the chief recommendations of the House of Commons committee on agriculture which drafted its report regarding its investigation into the methods of handling and marketing of agricultural products.

The report also commends the activities of the officers of the department of agriculture in putting before the farmers their suggestions for solution of various problems, and particularly urges them to disseminate information regarding the causes of soil drifting, especially on the open prairie, and also the precautions to take in seeding down to grass or clover, or the planting of trees and hedges, as possible remedial measures.

WARNING CITIZENS RE FAIR DRIFTERS

Merchants are requested to leave a light burning in premises during Exhibition. Drifters are following the Fair this year in large numbers, and every precaution should be taken to make your premises safe.

Do not cash cheques for strangers as this is an opportune time for the bad cheque artist. It does not matter whether you know the person on whom the cheque is drawn. Be sure the cheque is issued by the person mentioned before cashing the said cheque.

Care should be locked and nothing of value should be left in cars as this gives the petty thief an opportunity that he is looking for. See that your spare tires are securely locked on your car. Park your auto properly and do not leave it where it will obstruct or interfere with traffic. Keep on the right side of the roadway and drive carefully.

Citizens should not leave their residences unoccupied during day or night, and if necessary to be away during the evening then the light should be burning and the place securely fastened. Do not take chances. All articles of value around premises should be placed in a place of security and such buildings as garages and sheds securely fastened.

NO STAMP TAX ON $5 CHECKS

OTTAWA—Checks of five dollars and under are exempt from the stamp tax by an amendment to the war revenue act adopted in the house of commons Tuesday. The amendment was proposed by the government.

DE MILLE MAKES TALKING DEBUT

"DYNAMITE" STORY OF ULTRA-MODERN SOCIETY, FAIR WEEK SPECIAL

With the announcement that "Dynamite," a Cecil De Mille talking picture, which will come to the Billie Theatre, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is an ultra-modern story of ultra-modern society, facts have been brought forward to show the unique position which the producer-director gained in the film industry through this particular type of photodrama.

Although De Mille has gone far ahead into a dozen countries and periods for his stories, his success with material carrying a smart and sophisticated flair has become a by-word.

"Old Wives for New" was the first of the De Mille pictures to display gorgeous gowns, concealed telephones, and swanky bathtubs. At the time of its production it was considered so daring, in fact, that the suggestion was made that it should be shelved. It is believed to have been a bigger commercial success than any other picture of its type. This film took Gloria Swanson from the comedy ranks and made her a dramatic star.

"Don't Change Your Husband" established the urbane Lew Cody as a prince of sophisticates. "For Better or Worse" continued the divorce series, and topped all previous pictures for box-office receipts. Bebe Daniels came from Hal Roach comedies to make an overnight hit in "Male and Female." William Boyd started his career as an extra in "Why Change Your Wife?" considered by many, the greatest of De Mille's "divorce" series. "The Affairs of Anatol" presented Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Monte Blue, Agnes Ayres and Bebe Daniels in an adaptation of Schnitzler's polished satire. "Manslaughter" brought Leatrice Joy from obscurity into stardom and made Thomas Meighan a greater star.

"Dynamite" is said to be of the same type as these conspicuous past successes. In line with the De Mille principle of creating "new faces" wherever possible, tests were made of every prominent star who could possibly fit any one of the main parts. As a result Charles Bickford and Kay Johnson, New York stage players were selected for the two featured roles of a coal miner and a girl of high social position.

"Dynamite" was written for De Mille by Janice MacPherson, author of thirty of his biggest successes, including "The Ten Commandments" and "King of Kings." The dialogue is the work of Miss MacPherson, Gladys Unger and John Howard Lawson, author of "Procuress" and other impressionistic plays.

WEDDING POPULAR EDGERTON LADY

MISS E. SWINDLEHURST IS UNITED TO REVEREND GEORGE PEAKE

St. Mary's Church, Edmonton, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday, July 28, at 10.30 A.M. when Miss Evelyn Swindlehurst, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Swindlehurst of Edgerton, became the bride of Mr. George Peake, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Peake of Belford, Ireland. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Leversedge, assisted by Archdeacon Burgett.

The bride looked charming in a gown of floral crepe with over-dress of silk net and English embroidery and picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and Lily of the Valley. Miss Adeline Steine, the bridesmaid, wore a gown of floral crepe de soire and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Herbert Swindlehurst, brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal party, with immediate friends and relatives, adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Strange of 11702—97th St., where a dainty buffet lunch was served. The table was attractively decorated with white streamers and flowers, the bride's cake being the centre piece.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the happy couple left by car for Banff and other western points. On their return they will reside at Wainwright where the groom is in charge of the Anglican Church.

PRINCE OF WALES STOCK TO SHOW AT OUR FAIR

According to information to Secretary Stuart from Prof. Carlyle, the manager of the Prince of Wales' ranch at Peabock, near High River, a number of entries of stock are being brought here for the three-day Fair. This will give our farmers a splendid opportunity of viewing some of these world-renowned prize winning "bossies!" Wainwright's Fair is surely on the map to attract such entries as this to its annual show!

PROVINCES NAME RELIEF SCHEMES

PREMIER MOVES TO GIVE GOV-IN-COUNCIL POWER TO MAKE GRANTS

OTTAWA—The Red Cross has been asked to take charge of distribution of food and clothing, primarily to women and children, under the Dominion government unemployment relief programme.

This was announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. The prime minister said that provinces had nearly all furnished the government with programmes for relief which, in some cases, contemplated meeting winter conditions.

Adoption of a resolution to confer the governor-in-council with powers to make essential grants during the present fiscal year for unemployment and farm relief was moved in the House of Commons by Mr. Bennett. The measure, which would be introduced following passing of the resolution, the prime minister said would also give the governor-in-council power to deal with the maintenance of peace, order and good government in all parts of Canada.

Miss M. Turner is expected at her duties at the Red and White store this week end. Miss Margaret Fish has been deputising for Myrie for the past couple of weeks, during the holiday period.

LOCAL NOTES

Mr. G. Siddall has now moved his family into town from his lake cottage and is preparing to leave for his new station in the city. He expects to be away about the middle of the month.

The Fair on Aug. 6-7-8 is YOUR fair. Are you doing your best to achieve success? Get your entries in early.

ENTRY LIST IS HEAVY

ENTRIES FROM THE PRINCE OF WALES' RANCH TO SHOW SHORTHORN CLASS

Possibly owing to the many adverse circumstances which have cropped up in practically every other direction, the Big 1931 Fair of the Wainwright Agricultural Society gives promise of being the finest such affair ever staged here, and the directors and officials are all optimistic that this will be no dream.

Entries in nearly every class of the big prize list have been above expectations, this being especially the case with regard to the five stock classes, and the Fair which runs from Tomorrow (Thursday) till Saturday night will no doubt receive the full support which it truly deserves by way of attendance from all and sundry. Be there! Be there every day! Be there all the time!

The Prince of Wales' Shorthorn herd, from the ranch at High River has been entered for competition, and as this is only the second "Class B" fair at which these animals have been entered the entry has aroused a great deal of interest among local breeders.

For the joy side of the Fair, the Kapel United Midway promises to supply "all the fun of the fair" in a measure to suit all and sundry—old as well as young—so that given the fair weather which seems to be on the tapis, the district may well get ready to render their assistance to make this year's offering really the best ever.

BOARD TO DIRECT CREDIT SOCIETIES

CONTROL DECIDED ON FOLLOWING ACT OF 1930 LEGISLATURE

EDMONTON—Alberta rural credit societies will now be under the control of a board of management that has been appointed under an Act passed by the legislature at its last session. W. V. Newsom, deputy provincial treasurer, is chairman of the board, and associated with him will be J. P. Perdval, supervisor of rural credit societies, and James Glen of Alameda, who represents the provincial Association of Co-operative Societies.

Affairs of 42 rural credit societies throughout the province will come under the authority of the new board organization totalling 1,672.

The societies are reported to be mostly in a satisfactory condition, with only a few that may not immediately be qualified to come under the new scheme of management. It is proposed to build up a reserve under the act, which will be sufficient to cover any eventual losses that may occur.

MAYOR FORSTER WELCOMES VISITORS TO BIG FAIR

"I feel sure that it will be indeed a pleasure for all citizens of Wainwright to unite in extending a hearty welcome to all who will be in town on Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the annual fair of the Wainwright Agricultural Association."

Having been inaugurated in the pioneer days of the district the Fair has made steady progress throughout the years, and has become an institution of which all may well be proud. It is characteristic of the agricultural and community interests of the people of the district who have united so well in promoting their mutual welfare along these lines.

The officers and directors of the association have made every effort to make this year's Fair an unqualified success both in the number and quality of exhibits as well as in the entertainment for the crowds whom they hope and believe will attend the three-day festivities.

I believe that this year bids fair to set a record in the number of exhibits in all classes, and particularly in the five stock classes.

I trust that our citizens will show every cordiality and hospitality to our visitors, to the end that Wainwright's 1931 Fair may be an outstanding success.

M. L. FORSTER Mayor

ST LUKE'S MARDI-GRAS PROVES BIG SUCCESS

FROM FIRST TO THE LAST BIG CROWD GIVEN LOTS OF MERRIMENT

Fun and merriment reigned supreme at the Mardi-gras and picnic which was put on at Mott lake on Wednesday last by the members of St. Luke's (R.C.) church, when a crowd of upwards of 700 were in attendance.

From early afternoon till well on into the following morning the joyousness was kept going with games, sports, and other amusements and the big wind-up to the affair was a dance in the pavilion.

A miniature midway was put up by several of the willing workers and these were all adding to the funds. The weather man smiling down through a thermometer-reading of 90 in the shade kept the soft drink and refreshments booths going fairly steady, and the supreme effort of the ladies of the church—the big chicken supper—was a crowning achievement, and deserves great praise.

The crowning of the "Queen of the Festival" which delicate task fell to Mayor Forster, saw Miss May Tolmie voted as the most popular girl of the affair, with Miss Mary Latch as first princess. Both of these young ladies received worth-while awards for this proof of their popularity.

A big bonfire and fireworks added to the attractions after dark, and a tired but happy crowd wound its way homeward full, satisfied with the 1931 St. Luke's annual.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETS TONIGHT

A meeting of the Wainwright Board of Trade will be held in the Council chamber of the Town Hall at EIGHT P.M. TONIGHT (Wednesday) for general business, including the making of arrangements for the Banquet to be held from 12 noon to 1 p.m. on August 15th, in connection with the visit of the Edmonton Grade and Gradedettes Basketball teams.

DUCK SEASON IS REDUCED MONTH

BAG LIMIT HALVED — HUNTING RESTRICTED TO SEPT. 15 TO NOV. 14 IN S. ALBERTA

EDMONTON—A shorter time for shooting wild ducks and geese will be the order this year. Dates for the open season have been set by the provincial game department as from noon on Sept. 1 to and including Nov. 14, north of the Clearwater and Athabasca rivers; and from Sept. 15 to Nov. 14 south of those rivers. This is a shortening-up of one month as compared with last year.

The bag limit for ducks will be 15 a day in September, and 25 for the balance of the season, with a maximum of 100 birds for the season. In the case of geese, the limit will be 10 a day, with a total of 30 for the season.

The restrictions this year are with a view to conservation of the bird supply, which has been showing signs of depletion. Saskatchewan and Manitoba have made similar reductions, while there is a movement in some of the states across the line to make still further cuts, it having been suggested that a 30-day season should be adopted. There is a possibility, according to B. Lawton, chief game commissioner, that joint action may be considered in both Canada and the United States to shut down entirely on wild fowl shooting during 1932.

LOCAL NOTES

Miss E. Hart who was spending a few days holiday with friends at Irma has now returned home.

*** The Wainwright W. I. will hold a basket picnic at Mott lake in the park on Tuesday next, Aug. 11th at 2:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to be present and have a good time at this real get-together. Ladies bring your baskets next Tuesday afternoon.

RATEPAYERS DECIDE TO JOIN HOSPITAL AREA

Voting on Friday last gives a clear ultimatum regarding the desires of a large number of farmer ratepayers to become part of the Wainwright municipal hospital scheme, and thus decide the full advantage at the cheap rate.

In the first result attained, owners of some eight sections of land in M.D. 453 which at present is included in the Vermilion hospital area, voted to be transferred from that scheme to the Wainwright hospital district on account no doubt of being closer and the quicker relief afforded, the ballot on this question stood EIGHT-THREE FOR and NONE AGAINST when Returning officer Gordon Graham gave his declaration on Saturday.

In the second poll which was to decide as to adding some seventeen sections of M.D. 422 to the original area in the hospital district the voting resulted in a big majority for the project, the count being TWENTY-FIVE FOR and SIX AGAINST.

This will therefore increase the area of the local municipal district by some twenty-five sections of land.

FIRST AID IS TAUGHT IN MOTION PICTURES

Canadian National employees who study First Aid and undergo the St. John Ambulance Association tests will be assisted in their preparation for usefulness in emergency by motion pictures, A. O. Beck, Chief First Aid Organizer for the System announced. Three copies are now being made up of a reel on artificial respiration, one of which will be kept in the Central Region, one in Winnipeg and one in the Maritimes.

WILL SHIP FEED MANITOBA POINTS

SAYS CROP REPORT FROM BANK OF MONTREAL MANAGERS

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports.

General.—Except in the northern districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, crops throughout the Prairie Provinces have suffered from the intense heat of the past week. Some half losses have occurred in Alberta and Saskatchewan but the territories affected are not extensive. Slight damage from rust and insects has been experienced in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Pastures are drying up and need water. In Quebec weather conditions have been favourable to the growth of all crops. In Ontario the harvesting of excellent wheat and barley crops is progressing well despite continued showery weather, other crops generally are very satisfactory. In the Maritimes crops in general are making satisfactory progress, though warm dry weather would prove beneficial. In British Columbia the weather continues very warm and dry throughout the Province and crops are maturing rapidly.

Alberta.—In the northeastern area wheat is eighty per cent headed and making rapid growth, but damage is reported in isolated areas. In the southeastern area crops have suffered from excessive heat; cutting will commence this week. Practically all of the wheat in western area is headed out and following ample rain rains are making rapid progress. Hay has damaged crops in small areas. Saskatchewan.—Crop prospects continue fairly satisfactory in most sections north of Saskatoon, while in the Prince Albert area and the extreme north wheat heads are filling well with ample moisture and good average yields are expected. Extreme heat and strong winds have caused further deterioration in the central and southern part of the Province, where crop conditions now vary from very poor to complete failures. Farmers in some sections are cutting wheat and coarse grain for feed. More rain is urgently needed. Manitoba.—Wheat is ripening rapidly and cutting of early grains has commenced. Harvesting will be fairly general by next week. Light yields are indicated in all districts except the Red River Valley, where conditions are fairly good. Crops in western areas are being pastured or cut for feed. It will be necessary to ship feed into southwestern section.

*** Keep your grain off the market and help boost the price. You will need some lumber for a granary, and will find this at the Atlas yard. Phone 57.

The combined party of the Jersey City and Ohio Elks, numbering 50 and 20 respectively, returning from a convention in Seattle.

The National Educational Association tour party, from Eastern Canada returning from the Pacific Coast.

SEE DRASTIC CUT OPEN GAS FLOW

NEW PROVINCIAL RESTRICTIONS WILL HAVE IMPORTANT EFFECT

CALGARY—Policy of the Alberta provincial government to hold the open flow gas of Turner Valley down to 100,000,000 cubic feet daily as announced by Premier Brownlee, will mean further drastic curtailment of the flow, it was learned from a reliable source.

With curtailment to 40 per cent of the open gas flow in effect, as well as a 50 per cent reduction in purchases of gas by Imperial, Turner Valley is still said to be producing between 250,000,000 and 300,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

On July 20, with the government curtailment order in force, Turner Valley is said to have had a flow of 400,000,000 cubic feet. Announcement was then made by Imperial that only 50 per cent of the production of valley wells, based on the June deliveries would be received in the future. The total flow then dropped to between 250,000,000 and 300,000,000 cubic feet.

To cut down the flow to 100,000,000 cubic feet it will be necessary to curtail further the present gas flow by more than one-half, it is stated.

The Wronged Number

BY GEORGE F. NIERBERG

Lee, fall, when from Wall Street hi-jackers goes away, and decides to throw an easy-money wake. I was elected unanimously to act as one of the official corpses. It was a very high honor, although their eggs kinds crowd me into the house, so to speak me being the only guy what hadn't committed suicide to date.

You remember me now, huh? Yes, sir, I'm the ringer, Danny Doolan—the Boy Blunder. That's me!

Anyway, I find myself entirely surrounded by six silver handies, and no more you to fool around with the smoke and blonde racket. I was through, mister. And I decided to stick to craps exclusively, a lovely clean game where a gentleman has got a Chinaman's chance. Especially if you roll your own, hey?

Well, it was the last week of the season and when I wasn't on the tele I was listening to some yegg moon for more margins. I was holding down a seat on the Apache's bench. Me being manager, they extend me their privileges. In case you don't go for the bond's strips in the newspapers I will explain that the Apaches is an alleged ball club in the East Coast League, one of them clubs composed of numb ones what walk on their hind legs and wear baseball uniforms—the latter being an ideal of mine. You know, a bit of camouflage to let the dear public into thinking that they was looking at ball players. I thought it was a very clever move at the time, but no—the cash customers seen right through the disguises. Maybe I should never tried to fool 'em—it was kind of a dirty trick, at heart's honor.

At the moment, me and my herd of ramberry clumps was engaged in a terrific struggle with the Arabs to see what one of us was going to have the glory of nesting in last place. And we was the lucky stiffs what was awarded the embrodered horse collar before a madly cheering mob of mooks. Among a hundred of them, there was, guys what was probably afraid to go home, anyway, and had to have some place to park their car cases.

Along about the third of eighth inning, when I was getting dizzy from watching them Apache clown, some bird came in the dugout and squeals alongside.

"Mr. Doolan?" he pipes.

"Yes—and no," I says. "It all depends if you're from my brokers."

"Oh, no, Mr. Doolan, I represent the Stupendous Super Films, Inc. Whipple is my name—Waldo Whipple executive director of the Stupendous epic 'Juggernaut' and 'Death Rendevous'." Perhaps you have seen—

"I have seen them mumb'ring master pieces," I snarl, "and they was lousy. Now go on with your story."

"It wasn't my intention," says Mr. Whipple, "to become involved in a discussion of the merits of our pictures. Briefly, Mr. Doolan, I am here to offer you a temporary position with our company as technical director for a baseball—er—epic we are about to shoot. Would you care to go into the matter more thoroughly—say at my hotel tonight? I can assure you now, Mr. Doolan, that you will find a sojourn in California a happy relaxation—and the financial remuneration extremely attractive."

Outta the sides, fella. And me getting all ant to put the bite on the club for a G note! Ho, ho, wotta break for Danny Doolan! Me—working with a very famous organization what has produced such super-epics as 'Juggernaut' and 'Death Rendevous'!

I guess them big boys know class when they sees it, hey?

While I usually keeps up with my current events, just what a technical director was had sorta slipped my mind, so to speak. But Mr. Waldo Whipple gives me the inside on what I was—and why. According to Waldo the last Stupendous masterpiece was an awful bust. It seems that the lovely hero was in the ring fighting with a very course brute as per schedule, mother's little helper was getting his permanent wave mused up something terrible. Finally the gorilla shoots a left hook to the button, after which a close-up shows Little Rollo with his bangs in the water bucket. Which was the signal for the little gal who had been wronged to dash in and whisper to her sugar not to forget the mortgage on the old farm. Well, after she twitters away for thirty minutes or so, her lover picks the sponges and smelling salts out of his cars, grasps his biceps totters over to the gorilla what was waiting all this time with his chin at a convenient angle and gives the ape a socko that knocks him through a exit for fire only. At of which moves the crows and chickens and his sweet heart's honor.

Anyway, it seems the careless Mar of Queensbury never made no allowance for half-hour intermissions when he cooked up the boxing blue book and this Stupendous epic gets a horrible razz from the vulgar ringworms in the audience. Waldo tells me that when them boys see it they make very coarse noises with their mouths and finally it was necessary to emblazon the super-epic in mothballs.

"A sports audience," says Waldo, "is the most harshly critical audience in the world. It is for that reason all sport scenes filmed on the Stupendous lot must now be supervised by experienced men who can guarantee the accuracy of all technical details, however minute."

Translated into English, that means I was the muck elected to keep them cinnamon clowns from running the wrong way after they knocks a phony home run in the ninth. You know, or to prove to 'em it ain't correct to hold a bat like it was a butterfly net. Well, after a season of chaperoning them Apache crackpots, it sounds like a real cure and I puts my "X" on the dotted line. Always hasty, I was.

Later, after me and Waldo has inhaled most of what was on Waldo's hip, does he crack down with the bad news.

"A rare bit of good fortune for me on this trip," purrs Mr. Whipple. "For I have also signed a perfect double for our Philippe Marlowe, who will co-star in the big picture with the heavenly Hula Hume. Philippe is much too fragile—and expensive—to risk in the baseball shots and this young man happens to be not only an exact image of Philippe but a professional ball player as well. It's a strange Mr. Doolan, that you never noticed the uncanny likeness between Mr. Marlowe and Mr. Gorman?"

"You mean Sheik Gorman?" I yelps. "Sheik Gorman—what pitches for us?"

"None other," comes back Waldo, with a satisfied chuckle. "Do you know, I sense a latent fire smoldering in that lad—a hidden histrionic talent, perhaps—"

And so on and so on. Confidentially if that initiated Gorman buzzard is an actor, I'm a debutante. He ain't a bad looking, understand, if you care for them pretty pictures in the collar ads I gotta hand him that. But the way that egg loves his own reflection is—well, I won't say no more about it.

And the dolls tumble hard for him. Once I seen the names of his sugars in Philly alone and the list looks like one of them petitions what they sends to Congress on a truck. One 'good morning' from him and they starts to swoop with joy.

He was the original great lover, what I mean. Sure, I know all about Solomon and Rudy Valentino, but this Sheik Gorman has them lovebirds handcuffed easy. Besides, he don't need no June moon or soft music when he works. The Sheik could get in a bargain counter rough and tumble and inside of sixty seconds have them respectable lady wrestlers all clinging to his sleeve and cooing over him gentle with that gaga look in their eyes. You know.

Sheik Gorman was pulling his solo Romeo racket before our rattier pause at Manhattan Transfer. That baby don't stop to pick daises when he's on the make. And the dame this time looks like one of them uh-huh Spanish dancers what leaps around with a rose in her teeth before she jabs a lovely stiletto in her sweetie's tonsils. All this I notice as I stagger by on my way to the club car, me being not exactly stone blind, so to speak. The Sheik was unloading the old dreamy bookoo plenty, and was the babe eating it up? Mister, already her chin was resting in her lap and I seen right away where she was going to have a very tragic romance to muffle over when she gets back to Little Rock.

Anyway, with the Sheik booked solid, I was looking forward to a nice, quiet evening—but no. I got no privacy with that wart around. In fact, I just flops in the drawing room, take it my shoes and starts to give the sports section a looksee when the heart throbs rolls in early. And after the balance of the Scotch is killed and he admires his beautiful finger-nails he begins his soul.

"It's no use, Darny," he groans. "I am giving up the love racket for good. Ask me why, I answer promptly. Always a sportsman, I like to give my quarry a chance—I prefer to shoot it on the wing, as it were, or to be returned the victor only after a long hard struggle. But what actually happens when I go gunning for honey hearts? Well tonight, you saw the utter capitulation. To be brutally frank she fell in my lap, Daniel, and it wasn't sporting, old fellow to knock 'em over like that. But alas, what can I do?"

"Naturally they drops," I snarl, "when you talks to 'em. But they don't tell you why they drops. Even your best friends won't tell you."

"Your comment smacks of the gutter, Daniel," chirps the blight. "You talk like one of the common ball players. For three hours my liquid voice has been dwelling upon the beauty of erotic love in a moon-drenched garden—or was it something about the chaotic loveliness of crimson lips, trembling and wistfully sweet? Darned if I can remember. No matter. You have dispelled the golden aura and here I sit, you by my side, peering maliciously at your buttons. They are revolting—but fascinating. You may think up a snappy comeback while I disrobe, Daniel. By the way, is this your toothbrush?"

"It is!" I howls. "Did you think it belonged to Mr. Pullman? You banding husband, ain't nothing sacred to you at all?"

"An oversight, my good man, merely an oversight. Even I make an occasional mistake, strange as it may seem. But I accept your apology, Daniel. Er—did I tell you Dolores whispered tonight that I looked like a brouse god? She—"

Well, he was off to a running start, and at 2 o'clock in the morning he was still chattering away, telling him self what a magnificent guy he was. It was his favorite indoor sport.

Next day we grab one of them grapefruits limiteds outta Chicago.

Speaking offhand, my thumbprints show me up as one of them high-hat effete Easterners, coming as I do from one of the best gutters in Jersey City. The Sheik, too, although he is a country boy—from Brooklyn. Anyway, us two lose no time getting in a wrangle over this and that with some of them native sons from Sioux Falls, Chattanooga and Medicine Hat.

Well, scholars, Los Angeles is the place where you can strangle your dear wife on a busy downtown corner and not attract half the cops you do when you tries to buy a dope sheet on the Agua Caliente races. The refugees from Beazark Center Neb, is responsible for them pure conditions, according to a poor, frightened and practically extinct Californian what I finds shivering in a dark alley. This vile felon had won two bits in a crap game and was hiding to avoid being lynched by some infuriated old settler from Halo City, Ark. The week previous, he tells me, his old mammy had been boiled in oil for copping a sofa pillow in a penny raffle.

But as I started to say, L.A. is a very large tract of land inhabited exclusively by vigilantes from Vermont. Volstead porch climbers, old gents with a bad cough and b-b-beautiful babes! And all in one spot! It ain't fair to the rest of the U.S.A. And with a platinum mine like that to ballyhoo, them real estate morons yodel climate!

At the studio we gets a close-up of Mister Philippe Marlowe, what was an exact duplicate of the Sheik, except that Philippe's adenoids limits his entire conversation with us to "Ah—ah, charmed—my dear ah—ah fellows!" Immediately after which he collapses—the strain musta been terrible, huh? Aw, you know how it is with them numb crooners.

Well, the vulgar baseball scenes was scheduled to be shot a couple of weeks later, so we had plenty of leisure to absorb the atmosphere on the Stupendous lot. And it wasn't no time at all before we absorbs a pair of clingers what was very willing to be absorbed—while they was waiting to be started, so to speak. Like most of the star-celebrities I has met these gals has a terrible yen for a lunch counter. So we goes in the Palmotto Grove, where they order a flock of cavali, artichokes, breasts of pheasants and other coarse, economical foods. It was one of 'em refined black jack joints where the management was human enough to quit printing prices on the scorecards after they sees the cash customers faint in their chairs. And I was just dopping out a smart way to outfumble the Sheik for the check when I periscopes something two tables away that knocks me inogin'to!

I looks again—to make sure, see? Can you dead-beat it, Mister—Mamie Clancy, from Jersey City! Mamie Clancy—what had pretty legs, a dirty temper and what was one of them snippy snappers on the J. C. telephone exchange! Know her? Say, when we was kids I used to put gum in her red hair. We was sweethearts, what I mean. While she runs mostly to eyes and legs, she was always a knobout—with a lot of uptown ideas. Anyway, when I goes to work under the big tent, our romance gets chibblains. But now—oh, sacred aunt! What a terrible hum Cleopatra was, hey?

"Excuse me, low companions," I says "but at you table I sees another one of my numerous admirers what is gnawing out her heart because I am here and she is there."

One of the starving sisters lifts her chin outta the shortcake long enough to turn around for a look.

"Oh, yeah?" she titters. "Don't crack comic, my lad. That ridiculous icebox happens to be—the one and only Hula Hume, in person! Now tell us another. I have no serious objec-

GUTTA PERCHA TIRES

GUM CUSHIONED

Accurate Curing—Timed to a Second

Machinery and equipment of the most modern type, much of it designed and perfected by "GP" Engineers, assure the production of tires of uniform wearing quality.

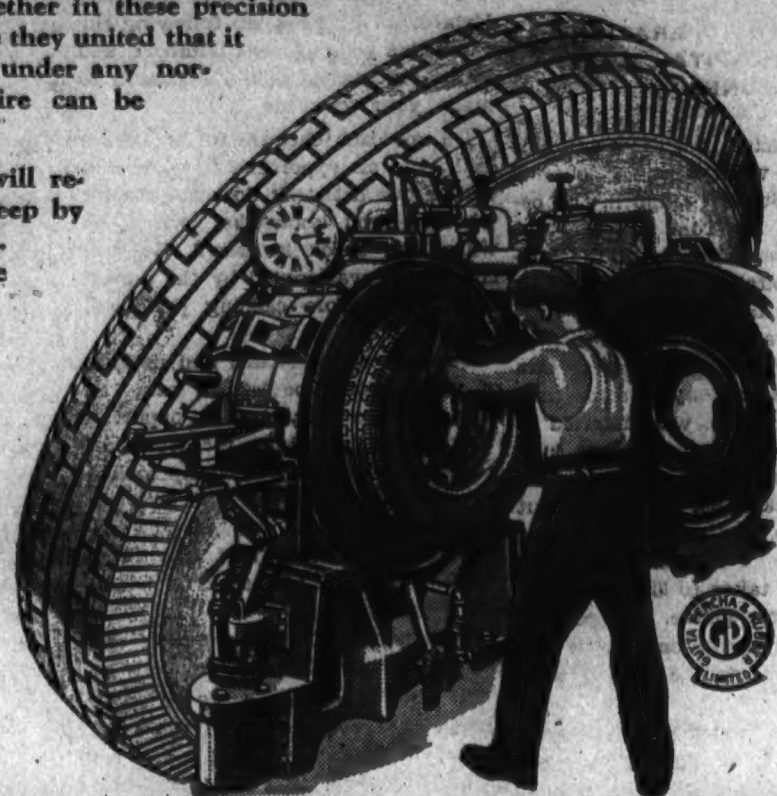

Much depends on the final operation in tire building—vulcanizing. The electrically time-controlled "watchcase" heaters insure absolute uniformity of curing. No human errors are possible. The Gum Cushioned carcass and the Resisto Tread are perfectly welded together in these precision vulcanizers—so thoroughly are they united that it is impossible to separate them under any normal conditions to which a tire can be subjected.

The purchase of "GP" tires will reduce the cost of your car upkeep by increasing your tire mileage. There's a Gum Cushion Tire Station in your district. Call around and get acquainted.

Electricity is turned directly into heat without the aid of pipes, rods or blowers in an organ invented and demonstrated recently in New York.

Following the principle used in autogyro airplanes, a German aviator has adapted the horizontal windmill to a glider to increase its stability in flight, and landing.

Intense illumination from photographers' flash bulbs is made possible by use of a large aluminum reflector which weighs only seven ounces and folds up.

Waste space on top of automobiles is utilized by a new luggage carrier which rests on vacuum cups on the car's roof.

Instantly adjustable to the door of the automobile, a dressing tent that is collapsible and can be carried to and from the beach has been placed on the market.

A pocket screwdriver with four blades, to be carried on the key ring, has been introduced. Each blade is made to fit a different size screw head.

An inflated mattress that makes an air raft for surf riding or other forms of water sport, has been placed on the market. It dries quickly and also may be used as an auxiliary bed. When deflated, it may be folded.

Combining the rigidity of a measuring rod with the flexibility of tape, a steel rule which can be propelled from its case by pressing a button, is now available.

A mica-insulated spark plug, completely shielded against radio interference, is now being produced.

Trees being felled along a fence or near other trees may be made to fall in the correct direction by means of a wedge jack now on the market. The jack is in the form of a hammer with a screw handle.

An extension leg has been developed for holding ladders steady on stairs or hillside, saving time and effort in blocking up one leg. The invention can be adjusted speedily and is regarded as safe.

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA AUGUST 5th, 1931

When the big Wainwright Fair opens tomorrow (Thursday), the long grind of hard work which the officers and directors of the Association undertake so freely and so willingly will have almost reached its termination for the year 1931, and from all signs available it would seem that the success of the affair is assured already.

This is an undertaking which is one of the greatest of public-spirited deeds in the whole district and with out doubt deserves the full and whole-hearted support of everyone within a wide range of Wainwright.

Instead of lying down under the bogey-call of depression, those responsible have worked might and main and the record entry list in practically all classes, and the increased prize-money offered, proves that at least Wainwright Fair is out to live up to its slogan of "Bigger & Better Than Ever."

No effort has been spared within reason to attain this end, and all that remains now to make the big three-day even a record breaker in every department is a huge turn-out of citizens of Wainwright and district.

See that YOU turn out to help
swell the attendance at the Fair—
not once but all three days—it well deserves all the support which every one can give it.

ABOUT FREE

ADVERTISING

There is no such thing as free publicity or advertising, for the very reason that if the people who benefit from the advertising do not pay for it then the newspaper has to pay for it, says the Canadian News.

It costs money to run this paper,
and if some people who think only of getting something for nothing would come in an look over our bills each month they would get a new conception of the cost of running a newspaper.

When items are sent to this office
as news items which are simply so much advertising, they will always find their place in the W. P. B. It is true we did run a free "Swap Column" this spring for the benefit of the farmers, who, goodness knows, have been hard enough put to it to carry on, and we thought we might help them a little and offered that assistance. Whether they appreciated it or not does not matter so much, as the fact that it was used as an excuse by many others, far more able to pay for it than we are, to seek "free publicity" for all sorts of things, and that too when such people are not even subscribers to the paper. Some of these free publicity hounds have the nerve to say by their subscription account that the paper is not interesting to them, and yet they turn right around and want us to give them a big writeup about their plans, which in the final analysis is but another attempt to put it over on the public.

There is another class of free publicity which is less irritating, but which is none the less costly. It is the advertising asked for by celebration committees who are out to make money for some scheme or other.
These projects are worthy enough in themselves, and we wish we could help them, but we would like to know if ever such committees go to the merchants in their stores and ask them for free groceries, or free shirts, or free shoes for the workers or those they would help. To ask a newspaper for free space is the same thing as asking a grocer for a 20-lb sack of sugar, or the hardware man for gift from his shelves. Why should the newspaper always pay when others are not asked to contribute?

This paper has the rule that no free publicity will be given to any project wherein a gate or admission is charged, or where money is expected to be made out of the project. Another rule is that no readers or advertising will be inserted in the news columns of this paper unless the advertiser has already purchased a display advertisement, and then such readers will cost ten cents a line in addition to the display advertising costs.

We do not wish to appear uncooperative, but we have to meet expenses, and we feel that a legitimate charge for advertising is the fairest way for the public to pay for the benefits derived from having a responsible newspaper in its community.

"TWO-IN-ONE" COURSE AT

VERMILION SCH. OF AGRIC.

Owing to the large yearly attendance at the Alberta Schools of Agriculture the regular course must be indeed popular and widely known.
Until recent years it was only possible to obtain a diploma after the completion of two successful winters of work. The new "Two-in-One" course, however, is a decidedly new and interesting short cut for anyone holding a Junior Matriculation or Second Class Normal Entrance. This unique course will probably need some further explanation.

The course is correctly named the "Two-in-One" for that is precisely what it is, for it is the combination and co-ordination of the practical work of both years. Because of the higher academic standing of these students such subjects as English, Arithmetic, Civics, with the exception of Chemistry are not required.

The time-table has been carefully planned so as to prevent any of the cooling or sewing periods conflicting and provides just enough lectures on related theory to prevent monotony.

The sewing course is perhaps the hottest. However, as very little evening study is required in other subjects it permits one to give some extra time to the sewing and allows even a novice to complete the work quite easily. Skill and confidence are gradually developed by the excellent instruction. The use and alterations on commercial patterns is an excellent feature of the work. After the completion of the course, having had instruction in Clothing, Design, Millinery and Sewing, Miss. Graduate can and does "Dress Better for Less."

The cooking is very general and practical for the recipes used are all suitable to the average larder. Many simple but scientific tests are used and very useful theory taught. The studies of "Foods" and "Dietetics" are intensely interesting and valuable and are taught in connection with this phase of work. The real test for the application of this work comes in the management of our complete apartment for four days. This excellent opportunity is afforded nowhere else in the province other than at the University.

Nor does the "Two-in-One" timetable exclude any of the sports or social events of the student body.
Physical training, basketball, volleyball, skating and hockey all share in keeping us fit, while debating, dramatics, glee clubs and dancing help to make the winter a "red letter" one.
The staff seem to thoroughly enjoy and enter into all student activities.
Who is the fittest rooster at a final hockey or basketball game, or the "rush" in ladies choice, or the best baker in the college?—always, you may be sure, some member of the staff.

From a teacher's viewpoint I would say that this course is very economical. Secondly, it gives us many new ideas and helpful hints in teaching such Public School subjects as Agriculture, Hygiene, Art, etc. Needless to say all phases of School Fair work are carefully dealt with, and appear in a new light. Lastly, it is a gateway to University, for it then only requires three years to complete their
B. H. Sc. course.

The "Two-in-One" course has been given a good trial and has proven very satisfactory from all standpoints.
It combines days crammed with instruction and accomplishments, with evenings of study, sport, and entertainment and rivals its equivalent the Freshman year at the University and quite surpasses the "Diamond Ring"
course at its sister College Guelph—
ask a graduate.

DEPT. OF MINES, OTTAWA

Canadian motorists are advised of a

which deals with the subject of lubri-of placing before the owners of such engines information which will enable them to decide more intelligently the choice of a proper lubricant. Care was taken in its preparation to avoid as far as possible the use of technical language.

The author, Mr. P. V. Rosewarne, starts out by explaining the principles of lubrication and citing the essential characteristics of a good lubricant. He alludes to the difficulty of obtaining any one oil or grade of

CANADIAN ROCKIES ECHO
WI' SKIRL O' THE PIPES

From the four corners of Canada and from across the seas, men, women and children of Scotch ancestry are preparing to meet at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Banff Springs Hotel, Banff, Alta., for the annual Highland Gathering, August 27-30, 1931.
The event, which has become historic, is under the distinguished patronage of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and will be formally opened by H.R.H.
Prince Subrodo of Greece. A feature of this year's program will be the inter-regimental piping competition between representatives of the 17th, 2nd, 5th Regiments in Canada. There will also be the other bagpipe competitions and displays which have made the Gathering famous, as well as dancing and highland games. The meeting always draws a large gallery, in addition to the army of costumed participants. Juvenile competitions in piping and dancing are particularly attractive. In addition to the regular events, two Scotch light operas, "Prince Charming" and "Prince Charlie and Flora" will be presented by members of the resident company.
The setting is ideal for the Gathering; the peaks of the famous Canadian Rockies, with their gracious valleys and spray-flecked streams forming a magnificent background for the Banff Springs Hotel, which is built in the Scotch baronial style.

Unclaimed Rewards

It is surprising to note the large number of rewards offered from time to time which still remain unclaimed and the offers of which still remain good.

The largest reward ever offered by the British Government was $150,000. It was offered in 1745 for the capture of the Young Pretender. I'm not sure whether this was a "dead or alive" proposition. If so the British Government is well advised to repeal the offer because there is no telling what these rocky times may prompt the secker after wealth to do.

A few years ago the Soviet government of Russia offered twenty million roubles to the person who would capture and deliver Oseip Litynski, who had been Soviet governor of the State of Lituania. Oseip and a few friends lit out for some other parts and, so far as I know, are still enjoying the open air.

The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to meet at Regina in 1932 has over 1,700 standing offers to anybody in the world. The largest of these is an offer of $50 a pound for 50 pounds of wheat—$2,500—to any person in the world who will deliver the best sample on or before March 1st, 1932. Among the other big fellows is one of $80 a cob for the best ten ears of corn—$800. A lot of people are going to win some easy money next year. This beats the sweepstake plan all hollow. Nothing is left to chance or good luck. If you "deliver the goods" you get the cash.

The International Association of Automobile Clubs in 1913 offered a sum of $100,000 for a perfect substitute for gasoline of such a nature that it could not be monopolized.

To the inventor of a machine which will efficiently pull and top sugar beets another award of $10,000 has been offered.

An Old Country paper says:

"Some years ago, the importation into Britain of aligrettes, the white feathers of the egret, was forbidden, and feather merchants offered a sum of one hundred pounds to anyone who could devise a method of keeping the egret in captivity. This is one more example of a prize that has never been won."

The hope of reward—some kind of reward—while the source of more evil, is at the same time, a greater impulse for good than anything else in the world. It is man's greatest incentive to action.

CUTS

In a recent article on the skin, we stated that the normal healthy skin has several important functions, one of which is that it acts as a barrier to keep out disease germs.

Just as soon as the skin is broken, the barrier is down and these germs which cause infections have an opportunity to gain entrance to the parts under the skin, and to start the serious troubles for which they are responsible.

The break in the skin need not be extensive; the slightest crack is sufficient. It is not the cut or the scratch which is dangerous, it is the infection which may follow when the cut or scratch is neglected. By infection we mean inflammation and swelling which generally go on to the formation of pus and which are the results of the action of the germs upon the tissues attacked.

The germs which cause infection are widely spread. Years ago, very few operations were performed. This was not because the surgeons lacked the necessary skill, but because when they operated, the wounds became infected. It was not until the discovery was made that germs caused the infection, that "antiseptic" means were devised of keeping the germs out of wounds with the result that modern surgery was made possible.

Wound infections do not occur in hospitals today because of the method used to prevent germs from entering the wounds. Before the surgeon cuts the skin, he prepares the surface in such a way as to destroy any germs which might be on the skin; he wears sterilized gloves for the operation, and everything which he uses has been sterilized.

The simplest cut or scratch should be properly treated without delay. In this way it is possible to prevent the serious and sometimes fatal results that come about because of the neglect of something which at the time of its occurrence appeared too trivial to bother about.

Some persons always want to stick their fingers into things. If they themselves or some other person have a cut or a scratch, they want to get their fingers into it. Fingers, unless they have been given a very thorough scrubbing with soap and water, are almost certain to be soiled and to carry the germs of infection. They should be kept away from cuts.

When the skin is broken, it should be thoroughly cleaned, and for this we would rely chiefly upon soap and water. After this the surface is covered with a sterile dressing to keep the area clean.

The treatment of wounds which are at all serious should be left to the doctor. Swelling or pain is the first symptom of infection, and if either of these occurs, there should be no delay in calling the doctor; the condition then requires active treatment.

Neglect leads to infection and infection is serious. Prompt care of all breaks in the skin, no matter how small they are, prevents infection. It is much better to give care promptly than it is to delay and then to suffer as a result of the neglect.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

PRUNE SUPPLY GROWS

The interesting prospect that Canadian production will soon be able to supply the entire demand for prunes in Canada is observed from the annual report for 1930 of the Dominion Experimental Station at Sidney, B.C. It is at this station that a special study of dehydration has been developed, and while logan berries and black berries have been successfully processed and prices for these fruits fresh is such as to discourage commercial dehydration. The price of prunes, however, is more in line with competitive supplies. They may be grown to perfection on Vancouver Island and offer an excellent opportunity for developing Canadian business in dehydrated prunes.

Prunes have to be fully ripe and ready to fall to the ground before picking, to be in prime condition for drying in order to obtain their full flavor and quality. Before being put in the dehydrator prunes are dipped in a hot solution of lye, 1 pound to 20 gallons of water, for 15 to 30 seconds—long enough to slightly check or crack the skin in order to hasten evaporation. They are then rinsed in clear water and started in the dehydrator at a temperature of from 115 to 125 degrees F. They are finished at 160 to 175 degrees F. and take about 30 hours for processing. The drying ratio of prunes averaged 3.5 pounds of fresh fruit to 1 pound of dried.

The dried fruit is stored in bins for some weeks where it undergoes sweating, and the excess moisture from under-dried fruit is taken up by the drier fruits, so equalizing the product as regards moisture content.

Before being packed for shipment prunes are processed by being immersed for 2 minutes in water brought to the boiling point. This processing sterilizes the fruit, softens it and gives it a glossy appearance. It is then packed while still hot into paper-lined boxes, and pressed down firmly by means of a press.

TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY

COMES CLOSER

That highway, which will choose a path for itself through the hitherto uncharted areas of Northern Ontario to link up the existing highways in Eastern and Western Canada, is coming closer. A date in September has been set for cutting the ribbon on the completion of the road between Kenora and Winnipeg. That will mean that the Manitoba and Ontario sections will have been linked, and all that will remain will be the building of a few hundred miles between Kenora and Hearst. Proposed routes have been sifted out, and survey parties are already out covering the ground, according to Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, who recently spent a busy week in the North Country. The complete highway would

When BABIES are Upset

BABY life and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready?

For the protection of your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. It's gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria.

A NEW YEAR'S EVE & AN OLD YEAR'S ADAM

except the candles still blooming on the far shadowy altar.

Calmly, across a woman's muffled scream, broke the voice of the Young Preacher.

'No danger at all, I am sure! Just a fallen tree probably and a broken wire. The damage will doubtless be repaired immediately. But meanwhile I implore you not to venture forth into the uncertainty. We can go back to a hearth-fire there.'

Gravely he turned and led the way back, gropingly, stumblingly, the handful of people followed him—vague, blurred indistinguishable one to the other.

Through the open door of the study a dying fire glowed its faint focus of welcome. Apologetically the young Preacher raked the cooling embers. Gravely he waved the shadowy guests to the shadowy benches ranged in the far corner of the room and watched them vanish one by one into the abyssal darkness.

Blackly silhouetted against the pale square of the fireplace, the Young Preacher stood just a bit uncertainly for a moment, then started decisively to the door. 'We can at least have a candle!' he affirmed, then stopped suddenly, swung sharply about and flung his young, impassioned arms like two prison bars across the doorway.

'No—no!' he cried out. 'Who can tell but what there is God's hand in this? All this darkness—this delay? My one chance perhaps, for all time! Oh, you New Year's Eve people—' he cried out—'in all the year there is no other congregation just like you. At Christmas, at Easter, at Thanksgiving even, people come to church in groups. Fathers and mothers and little children. Beaming, joyous! Out of the very fullness of their hearts! But you—? You New Year's Eve people—? Is it out of the emptiness of your hearts that you come? Alone—almost always alone—with taut mouths and faraway eyes. What do you seek here? Who are you? And what are you? Here, in the society of this featureless darkness, in the absolute privacy and assurance of your own anonymity, help me—I implore you! What brought you to the home of God tonight? Just how did the church summon you?'

There was an awkward little lilt; but of silence, broken suddenly by a guttural exclamation.

'Summon me—nothing!' grunted a voice. 'I'm a peddler, I am! What got me in here tonight was because my hands were cold!'

The frankly disconcerted gasp on the Young Preacher's lips changed suddenly to a faintly reluctant smile. 'Yet who knows—' he questioned 'but what the Church that warmed your hands may in time warm your heart—and kindle your soul?'

'Well countered, son?' laughed another man's voice from the darkness. 'S—sir?' questioned the Young Preacher. He seemed faintly startled.

'Oh, peddler!' protested the laughing voice. 'Oh, peddler! If you really want to know this thing you ask, why in thunder shouldn't you ask it? Me, for instance. You want to know who I am? Or rather, I mean, what I am? Well, I'm a banker. Rather a hard-shelled one, too, I believe I'm reputed to be. For the last dozen years, as it happens, my business has brought me to this particular city at just his particular season, and I've made it a habit to check in somewhere at a church service on New Year's Eve.

The older man, I noticed are pretty apt to be off duty on this night. Worn out, I suppose with all the Christmas services. So they turn things over to youngsters like you—who haven't had the chance yet, I suppose, to compromise with life. And the things you youngsters say! Romance mostly—hardly practical! But sort of sweet, too. Kind of takes me back, I mean, to my own young days.

'All this "right and wrong" prattle of yours,' he snapped. 'The consummate cheek of you! But—' he capitulated suddenly, 'if children and fools don't tell us the truth now and then who will?'

'Th—thanks,' stammered the Young Preacher.

'God!' chuckled a more youthful male voice. 'And I never heard a word the preacher said! Young feet shuffled just a bit uneasily. I'm just a clerk, you know, in a sporting good house. I'm going to be married tomorrow. And my chums are taking the town for me tonight. Bachelor dinner, you know! Once again he chuckled a little. 'They'll hardly think to look for me here, I wager! But she's such a wonderful girl,' he stammered, 'I sort of thought I'd like things to start sort of wonderfully with us! By Jove, I'll be back here again next New Year's Eve, and bring my girl with me!'

A little awkwardness crept across the silence. A bench creaked.

'Oh yes, And I? I was giving a party!' interposed Rhosa Waldron briskly. 'Rather gay, you know and all that sort of thing. But not gay enough, it seemed. They all went, that is, to find something gay. Even my husband. But just all of a sudden, I wasn't with them. My mood, I mean. I felt crowded. Wanted only to be quiet. But even when things got quiet it didn't seem to suit me. I felt uneasy. A sort of hunger—I don't know for what. I went out in the park, just to walk, you know. Just to see what it was all about. New Year's Eve. Just to find something to remember. Anything that wasn't fooling. A man bothered me a little. A stranger—a tipsy stranger. I saw the spire of a church, the glow of an open door; heard the vox humans of an organ. I thought it would be just the place, you know, to dodge into for a moment and escape the Tipsy Stranger.'

'No, indeed,' Rhosa persisted. 'It is just exactly as I told you. But when I got into the church, you see, I had to stay. The Tipsy Stranger followed me even there, I mean. Right into the church, right into the pew, so I couldn't get out. There was no one else in the pew except a demure little thing in gray—and the Tipsy Stranger—and myself!'

'At first, I was dreadfully annoyed. And then I thought it was sort of funny. But after a while, I got looking up into the arches, those great, shadowy, fathomless arches—so deep—so far. And then, all of a sudden, the chimes began to peal—those beautiful terrifying New Year's Eve chimes. I saw that the little girl in gray was crying, and even the Tipsy Stranger had a shiver in his eyes. And then just all of a sudden, we all three put out our hands to each other and made the "crossing" as you call it, together. I'm something I shall never forget! Out of all time—that one strange little moment!'

In the shadows just beyond her, a shadow stirred.

'Let me be the Tipsy Stranger,' drawled the shadow. 'And I came—because I was led!'

'Led?' protested the Young Preacher. Once again he threw out his hand in a gesture of impatience. 'Led? Five people taken just at random—and not one of you confesses the faintest spiritual reason for being here tonight! The thing is appalling!'

'Why?' quizzed the Banker's voice.

'We got what we came here for, did we?' argued the Peddler. 'I got my hands warm!'

'An' I got the truth, didn't I?' grinned the Banker.

'And I found a silence,' stammered the clerk. 'Nobody talking to you, I mean, or chaffing you! It gave me a chance to think. It was—satisfying!'

'And I found the solemn moment I was looking for,' attested Rhosa Waldron.

'And I found—found—' faltered the Tipsy Stranger.

With a sputter and sizz—the lights came suddenly up. A little bit precipitously, the Banker jumped up and started for the door of the study. With a shuffle of feet the others started after him.

Half-smilingly, half-frowningly, the Young Preacher stood aside to let them pass.

'Maybe you're right after all,' he admitted. 'Maybe it's—almost enough—if the church can give to the seeker that thing which he seeks. Even just warm hands,' he admitted.

ment and escape the Tipsy Stranger.'

Feeling himself into the darkness, the Young Preacher made a little gesture of protest. 'Oh, but surely,' he reproached her, 'there must have been some spiritual summons involved.'

'No, indeed,' Rhosa persisted. 'It is just exactly as I told you. But when I got into the church, you see, I had to stay. The Tipsy Stranger followed me even there, I mean. Right into the church, right into the pew, so I couldn't get out. There was no one else in the pew except a demure little thing in gray—and the Tipsy Stranger—and myself!'

'At first, I was dreadfully annoyed. And then I thought it was sort of funny. But after a while, I got looking up into the arches, those great, shadowy, fathomless arches—so deep—so far. And then, all of a sudden, the chimes began to peal—those beautiful terrifying New Year's Eve chimes. I saw that the little girl in gray was crying, and even the Tipsy Stranger had a shiver in his eyes. And then just all of a sudden, we all three put out our hands to each other and made the "crossing" as you call it, together. I'm something I shall never forget! Half-smilingly, half-frowningly, the Young Preacher stood aside to let them pass.

'Maybe you're right after all,' he admitted. 'Maybe it's—almost enough—if the church can give to the seeker that thing which he seeks. Even just warm hands,' he admitted.

One by one, with a touch on the shoulder he wished them—god speed 'Good by—and God bless you,' he smiled.

'Sah! I call a taxi!' questioned the Stranger.

'If you please,' said Rhosa Waldron. At the door of the taxi the Stranger lingered a minute, adjusted a foot rug and lifted his faintly smiling eyes to Rhosa Waldron's inscrutable gaze.

'All this Christmas spirit—' he questioned—'and this business of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men." Do you really believe it? Think it lasts, I mean, even for a week? Even till tomorrow? Am I forgiven, I mean?'

'Absolutely,' said Rhosa Waldron. 'Good-by!'

'And God bless you!' said the Stranger.

He took off his hat, shut the door. The motor started. The wheels churned from the transient drifts into the well-tramped street. Quizzically for an instant, through a great holly-wreath flanking her ear, Rhosa Waldron looked back and saw him still standing in the flare of an arc-light, sifting gold-dust through his fingers. Then the picture blocked, and the taxi raced her to her own door.

Lolling back once more in her chaise longue by the open fire, pampered with pillows, she looked up at last to greet her husband's return.

Slowly, tenderly, for an instant her eyes wandered across him.

'Good show?' she questioned.

'Rotten!' said her husband. 'The worst ever. But some of the jokes were good!'

Waldron.

Something unfamiliar in her voice made her husband glance up suddenly.

'Oh, I say,' he confessed. 'I was a duffer to leave you! I'm afraid you've had a dull evening!'

Rather tentatively for an instant, Rhosa Waldron seemed to be considering the question, looked at her husband, looked through him, then back at him again—and smiled.

'Not dull at all, old dear,' she said. 'Not dull at all!'

MR. FARMER! Please Read This Over! Check It Up!

That present grain prices make your anxious to hold your wheat, barley, rye, and particularly oats. If you deliver your grain to your local elevator they will charge you, after the first fifteen days one cent per bushel per month. This works out—

On every 1000 bushels for one month	$10.00
On every 1000 bushels for five months	$50.00
On every 1000 bushels for six months	$60.00
On every 1000 bushels for eight months	$80.00
From the time you thresh in October until May, the next year, it would mean a charge to you for storage of	$50.00

Now material for a granary 12'x14'x8' high with skids and shingled roof, will cost you only $60.00 to $80.00 right now and this granary will hold from 1200 to 1300 bushels of wheat.

Now is the time to commence building to be ready for storage of grain at threshing time. Pay us a visit. We will give you all figures to help you get a granary that actually won't cost you a dollar and you can use many years.

Honey is without doubt one of the finest of foods, and the honey which Mr. H. W. Love of Irma brought in to us this week was an eye-opener. He is now able to supply this nutritious necessity in quantities, and from the sample we can say that it truly has a very "moor-ish" flavor.

Mrs. P. Wiley and her daughter Ada, left on Tuesday for a month's holiday in Toronto visiting relatives.

Just a word of praise for our Town Cop. SCOUT CAMP—AT CLEAR LAKE

The Boy Scout Camp came to an end on Wednesday last, after ten glorious days for the boys. Swimming was the most popular pastime and some good work was done. Every one in camp came home able to swim a little.

A particularly good effort was made by one boy, who swam the length of the lake in 34 minutes. Seven boys passed the Swimmers Badge test (swim 100 yards breast stroke, 50 yards in clothes, undressed in 6 feet of water, and pick up 5 lb. weight in 6 feet of water). Five others passed their Second-class tests.

Some of the boys enjoyed the experience of the storm on Saturday night, although the occupants of two tents slept through the whole time. Fortunately the tents stood the test well.

FRUIT SYRUPS

In the home canning of fruits the syrup used is an important factor in success. The kind of syrup to use varies with different fruits. In putting up raspberries, peaches and pears use 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water; for rhubarb and cherries, 1 cup of sugar to 1 of water. All syrups should be strained and pears use 2 cups of sugar to 1 of water. All syrups should be boiled five minutes before being added to jars. Fill jars with fruit, packing as firmly as possible without crushing, then cover with syrup.
